DETAILED ACTION

The outstanding prior art rejection is maintained and repeated below. Applicant's remarks in connection with this ground of rejection are also addressed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-70 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent No. 6,815,390 to Vaughn.

Vaughn teaches a new catalyst system for fluorous biphasic catalysis processes comprising functionalized plastic beads, monodisperse SiO₂ or SiO₂ flakes associated with the catalyst in the fluorous phase.

The plastic beads, monodisperse SiO₂ or non-porous SiO₂ flakes are functionalized with a) partially fluorinated chains, or b) perfluoro chains, or c) hydrocarbon chains, or d) branched systems containing perfluoro, hydrocarbon or partially fluorinated chains, each having C1-30 atoms, and wherein groups like cycloalkyl or aromatic rings--optionally being substituted by one or more fluorine atoms or fluorinated groups--may be present.

The patent teaches that the catalysts may be applied to any catalytic reaction like catalytic hydroformylation, hydroboration, C--C coupling, epoxidation, oxidation, reduction and alkylation and others.

The difference between the process covered in the rejected claims and the process disclosed by Vaugh is that Vaughn fails to explicitly teach that the recited processes can be carried out in a non-fluorous medium. However, Vaughn teaches that as the organic solvent the typical organic solvents normally used in organic chemistry may be chosen. Preferred solvents are for example hexane, toluene, benzene, alcohols, dimethylsulfoxide or ethers like tetrahydrofuran. Moreover, the patent teaches that catalytic and stoichiometric reactions can be carried out in the fluoruous biphasic system, the simplest version being a two-phase mixture consisting of a perfluorcarbon (PFC) and a non-fluorinated solvent. Accordingly, the use of a non-fluorous medium is well within the motivation of those of ordinary skill, based on Vaughn, and is therefore, prima facie obvious.

Applicant argues that Vaughn fails to teach or suggest non-fluorous media or solvents, however Vaughn teaches that other, non fluoruous solvents can be used with the described system, see column 6, lines 55-59. Therefore, the prima facie case is maintained against the rejected claims.
